

Tyler Rogerson - Male Head of NRAC

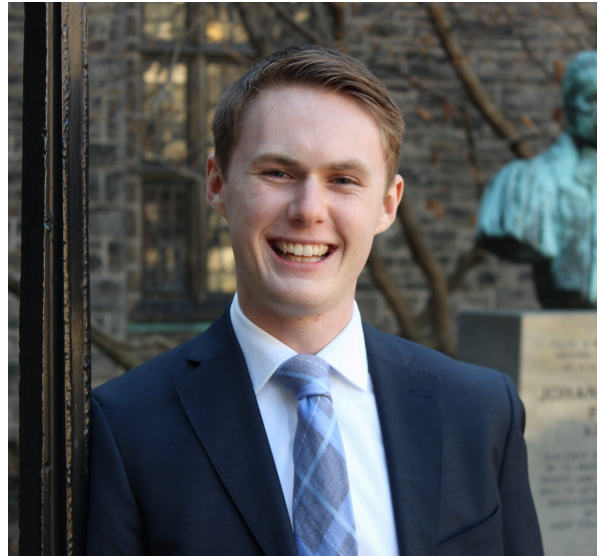

Members of College,

Over the duration of my time spent as a student here at Trinity College, I have had the pleasure of living both on and off of residence. I believe that all students, regardless of whether or not they live on or off of campus, should have equal access to participating in student events, clubs, and governance. As your Male Head of NRAC, I will work tirelessly to unify the Trinity community and eliminate the barriers that often prevent commuter students from enjoying the College's social atmosphere to its fullest.

Being a commuter student is tough. I understand that Trinity's late-night events, governance cycle, and sometimes-overwhelming social obligations can be difficult to manage while also trying to account for your commute home. As Male Head of NRAC, I would like to promote the NRAC common room as a second home and as a place that can be used by all students, including residence students. I hope that this initiative will ensure that the NRAC common room is not viewed solely as a space for commuter students which will help to turn the Trinity community into a more cohesive family. Additionally, I would like to dedicate a portion of the NRAC budget to paying for a select number of High Table commuter meals and to establish an email list that will provide students with sign-up links and details of any events that are not always accessible to those that do not have or use Facebook. Dismantling the obstacles that often plague commuter students and integrating the commuter population with the often exclusive Trinity culture will be my ultimate goal as a member of next year's Heads Team.

I am an active member of the Trinity community and often participate in the meetings of the TCBS, TCFC, and the TCM. I am currently the Trinity College Trustee for the International Relations Society, the Director of Communications for the University of Toronto Liberals and a President of the Trinity College Rural Residency Association. Additionally, I have sat on the executive of the 134th Conversazione as a Logistics Director, been a Frosh leader, and have dropped some fire beats at some notable College events as a student DJ. I have a strong passion for student governance and I would love to represent commuter students, along with the entire student body, at the highest level.

I am eager to share my ideas and plans for the future of NRAC with anyone that is willing to listen. If you have any questions, please email me at tyler.rogerson@mail.utoronto.ca or message me on Facebook! I look forward to speaking with you all at the upcoming Heads forum!

Met'agona,
Tyler
