

Hi Trin,

Working with the sober patrol team as co-captain alongside David Oliver this year has left me impressed by our community. People here (heads, students who have helped, and especially all of the SP volunteers) have been selfless with their time. Despite this, we still have a long way to go.

This year Dave and I have improved sober patrol's equipment for events (gloves, hairbands, bandages). Next year we hope to introduce miniature first aid packs for volunteers. This will help with identification (without forcing volunteers to wear neon shirts or tall identifying hats), and make volunteers more immediately helpful to students, because they will have things with them.

We've also worked on maintaining communication with the heads at events. Because they are recognizable and more approachable to many students, this helped us to reach more people at Conversat. Next year I would like to work with the heads and other college groups from the beginning of the year to ensure continued communication at events, and improve the accessibility/approachability of sober patrol directly to students.

I hope to continue as one of the two Sober Patrol Leaders next year. Let's help Trin events bring us all together, and not to the hospital...

Met'Agona,

Alexander Sapp
