

Andrew Irwin – Senate Representative

Members of College,

I believe that my involvement in Trinity College academic life and contribution to the greater social community of our College qualifies me as an exemplary candidate for the Senate, where I would provide effective representation and commitment to the academic values and community interests of Trinity College students.

The suggestions made to the Senate by the Community Affairs Committee are critical to the enjoyment and well-being of the College. I believe that I have the organization, knowledge, and judgment to be a valuable representative for students. Decisions regarding residence, discipline procedures, and interaction between administration and students are pivotal to Trinity, and I know that you can trust me to be your best advocate on these issues.

The Senate is responsible for determining the features, positions, and policies for Trinity's academic programming and direction, as well as elements of College life. As a student of Trinity's Ethics, Society, and Law program I believe that I am actively aware of the concerns and qualities of Trinity's academic structure, whether it be the Ones programs and Trinity majors, TRN and interdisciplinary courses, admissions policies, or the scholarship and bursary program. I am constantly amazed by the remarkable achievement and all-around brilliance of students at Trinity. I will ensure that the Senate rewards the responsibility and attention students show to their academics through the work of the Arts & Science and Student Awards committees.

I hope to shape the Senate's impact on academic and community life as your Senate Representative.

Met'Agona,

Andrew Irwin
