

Sydney Narciso Wilson: Second Year Female Head of Non-Residence

Hey Trinity!

I am incredibly excited to be running for non-res head. As someone who commuted during first year, I come to this position with an understanding of where some of the difficulties for commuters lie.

Little things like having to pick up wristbands hours before an event can be a huge barrier for commuters, who often schedule classes so they don't have to commute to school every day. On several occasions I have had to make a special trip to school just to pick up my wristband, or forgo attending an event because I didn't have time to make an extra trip. In talking to other commuters I realized this is a common problem. As such, I would like to change the way wrist banding for commuters works. I would also like to improve communications by working with administration to allow heads access to a college-wide email list so that you don't have to be constantly checking Facebook to be informed.

An important duty of second year heads is organizing events and High Tables. I love planning events and have considerable experience doing so. I have organized school-wide annual workshops and vigils in honour of the Montreal Massacre, which were reported on by the Toronto Star. I also have years of experience in leadership roles, having served as an executive for women's rights groups and political riding associations.

Met'agona,

Sydney Narciso Wilson
