Hey Trinity!

For many of us this place is more than just a school, it is a home. This college is defined by the connected community that students enjoy, and we think that these memories are worth being captured. As a team, we are looking forward to recreating the essence of Trinity and representing all members of college in the yearbook publication!

This year, Heather served on the Stephanos as both a photographer and a design editor. She received first hand experience working with the already strong Stephanos team, and built on her design knowledge from high school. Next year, her focus will be creating an original yearbook design and coordinating Stephanos members to actively be involved in production throughout the year.

Grace and Val also both contributed to their high school yearbooks as page designers. They plan on playing a prominent role in recruitment, by adding more people who share an interest in design to the team, and addressing requests and concerns of members of college. Val will also be going into fourth year, and will work to represent the graduating class of 1T8 through her commitment to the publication.

We are really looking forward to creating an inclusive yearbook that represents all students by capturing not only major events but also daily Trin life. Proper coordination with event planners will be a main focus of ours, to ensure that there is always organized photography at events. Likewise, we want to have a strong and reliable executive team for this execution! We are open to ideas and submissions from all members of college - to display all clubs, teams, special events and important college moments. By doing so, we will make sure that the Stephanos maintains the success it has had in previous years while adding our own originality.

The three of us are really looking forward to getting as many people involved in the yearbook as we can and creating an engaging and learning atmosphere for members of college! After all, this is a publication of you, Trinity students, and we will work to recreate college memories that will last forever.
